

ACQUIT TWO OF DRUNKEN DRIVING DESPITE TESTIMONY OF PHYSICIAN AND TWO POLICE OFFICERS

Three Others Are Fined $200 and Costs for Operating Cars While Under Influence of Liquor—Driver of Truck to 'Beer Drop' Pays $300 and Costs and Gets Jail Term

DOYLESTOWN, May 12.—The opening day of the second week of criminal court yesterday was "wet" all the way through. Practically all of the long list of cases disposed of were liquor cases or drunken drivers.

Two motorists were acquitted of charges of operating their automobiles while drunk and three others were fined $200 and costs. In the two cases of acquittal the Commonwealth produced the testimony of a physician who testified that in his opinion, after examining them, they were intoxicated and not fit to drive an automobile.

David Donn, twenty-six, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who was arrested by State Police while transporting 77 half-barrels of high-powered beer to a "beer drop" near the intersection of the Street Road and Bristol pike, pleaded guilty before Judge Hiram H. Keller. He was fined $300 and costs and sent to prison for three months.

Dohn said that he did not know what was on the truck, that he was simply hired in New York to drive it to a place along the Bristol pike. He said that he did not know the man who furnished beer for him, that his employer, Sam Saxe, saw to it that he was hauled out.

Horace Lynch, thirty-two, of 1945 Frankford avenue, Philadelphia, pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing and transporting twenty half-barrels of beer to a "beer drop" on the Dunk's Ferry Road near Bristol on February 18th. He said that he worked for John O'Brien and was caught by the State Police when he became stranded with a flat tire. He was hauling the beer on a small truck, after it had been loaded from a larger truck at the "beer drop." He admitted that he worked for a bootlegger and did it because he could not get other work. Judge Keller fined him $300 and costs and sent him to prison for two months.

Frank Calvaruso, of Brooklyn, N. Y., a truck driver, was fined $200 and costs yesterday by Judge Keller after pleading guilty to driving his truck while drunk in Morrisville on March 18th. He was arrested by Chief of Police Albert Cooper and argued his own case in court.

Thomas DeBusky, thirty-one, of Philadelphia, a former resident of Trenton, is a foreman potter employed by the Mohickon Pottery Company. He was acquitted yesterday by a jury of a charge of operating his automobile while drunk in Bristol at 2.29 a. m. on March 9. The jury directed that he pay the costs.

Two police officers of Bristol, Daniel Ferry and Charles Nicholas, and Dr. J. Fred Wagner, testified that DeBusky was drunk. Dr. Wagner testified that he examined DeBusky and that his breath smelled of liquor quite strongly and that in his opinion he was not in a fit condition to drive a car.

John McLaughlin, sixteen, of Philadelphia, who was with DeBusky, testified that the defendant did have three or four drinks of "home brew" at the home of his sister in Trenton, but that he was not drunk but sleepy as they were driving home. He and DeBusky had been spending the week-end on a (Continued on Page 4)

HOLLAND'S HURLING FEATURES OPENER

Superb Relief Work of Independents' Moundsmen Results in Tie

FINAL SCORE IS 5 TO 5

Last Night's Result
Independents, 5; St. Ann's, 5

Schedule for Tonight
A. O. B. vs. Harriman P. C.

(By T. M. JUNO)

Superb relief hurling by Wilson Holland featured the opening of the Bristol Twilight Baseball League last night on St. Ann's field as the Independents and the St. Ann's ball teams battled to a 5-5 tie.

A large crowd was on hand as Holland took the mound burden for the Independents, after Jones had been batted all over the lot by the St. Ann's hitters in the first two frames. Taking up the job with no one out in the second canto, Holland twirled five innings and during this stretch fanned thirteen batters and allowed but two singles. He issued but one pass and only was in danger of being scored upon once, and that was in the sixth inning when the "Saints" placed runners on second and third with one out. Holland struck out the last two batters to retire the side.

Errors lost the game for the Dorance street boys, who had five mis-ces chalked against them and everyone aided in the scoring of the Independents' runs. Wynno hurried good ball and deserved a better fate than accorded to him. He allowed but four hits and did not issue a pass. The St. Ann's clubbers connected seven hits off the deliveries of Jones and Holland.

"Lulu" Nicolls starred on the defense for the Saints, handling four chances without an error. "Sid" Purcell was credited with fifteen put-outs and an assist to lead the Independents defensively. Leo Gleason led the hitters with two hits in two tries at the plate.

The Dorance street boys started off in fine style, crossing the plate three times in the first session. Fields was hit with a pitched ball; Gilardi sacrificed and beat the throw, being credited with a hit; DiTanna slammed a triple to centerfield, scoring Fields and Gilardi and scoring himself when Gleason errored on the throw-in; Lasprella and Seneca fanned; Why-no's high fly went to Tryon.

The "Indies" were scoreless in their start, Why-no retiring the side on four pitched balls. But the "Saints" drove Jones from the mound in their second. Oriola beat out a hit to Gleason; Oriola singled to left and when Ayella allowed the ball to roll between his legs, Angelo scored and the batter reached third (Holland replaced Jones as the Independents' moundsmen at this time); Nicolls whiffed; Fields' hit was too hard for Massilla to handle, the hit going for two bases, Oriola scoring. Fields was out trying to steal third. Purcell to Massilla; Gilardi fanned.

The Independents tallied three times in their half of the second. Purcell reached first on Oriola's mis-ue; Jax Massilla hit to Why-no who threw to Seneca for a force-play at second but all hands were safe when the player dropped the ball; Jno. Massilla struck out; Gleason doubled over Fields' head, scoring Purcell, and when Seneca's throw-in was high, Massilla also (Continued on Page 6)

S. LANGHORNE BODY AGAINST BRIDGE CLOSING

Frames Protest and Will Seek Injunction From County Court

WANT NEW BRIDGE

SOUTH LANGHORNE, May 12.—At a special meeting of Borough Council last night resolutions were adopted to send letters to the Public Service Commission, the Reading Railroad, the County Commissioners, and Middletown Township authorities protesting the closing of the old trolley bridge over the Reading Railroad tracks by the Reading Company.

Council also instructed its attorney to ask for a temporary injunction restraining the Reading company from starting demolition work on the bridge.

The meeting which was called by Charles O'Brien, president of Council, was attended by Burgess Beidler and Charles J. Matthews, president of Langhorne Manor Council, who joined South Langhorne officials in declaring that the bridge must be opened or a new one erected as soon as possible.

With only one road remaining between the two towns, fire apparatus would have to wait from five to twenty minutes at the grade crossing.

O'Brien declared that the County Commissioners will inspect the bridge and if it is found unsafe, will have it repaired or seek permission to erect a new one.

It was learned last night that the Reading Railroad and not the State Highway Department ordered the bridge closed to traffic. The Reading company would disclose no plans for a new bridge and declared the present one would be torn down as soon as the Public Service Commission declares it unsafe.

KILLS STATE TROOPER; WOUNDS ANOTHER

McCONNELLSBURG, Pa., May 12.—Barreclough himself in his home near here today, Marshall Lodge, early today shot and killed Sergeant Timothy C. McCarthy, 42, of Troop E, Pennsylvania State Police and injured Private Nees, of Hazleton, attached to the same troop.

Lodge then made his escape into the sparsely settled Sideling Mountains to the west.

Sergeant McCarthy and Private Nees went to the aid of county authorities in arresting Lodge on a charge of beating his mother, when the youth opened fire on them from ambush.

Immediately after the slaying the man-tracking facilities of the State Police were flung into action in an attempt to apprehend the fleeing man. Word was flashed over the police teletype and all nearby police stations not equipped with wire service were telephoned to be on the lookout for Lodge.

Troopers who went into pursuit were warned to use utmost caution. Lodge was believed to be still armed with the pistol with which he snuffed out the life of Sergeant McCarthy.

McCarthy was born in Ireland and records at State Police Headquarters gave no home address for him.

The first period of the campaign, which closed last night, was a tremendous success. Tens of thousands, yes, hundreds of thousands of votes were issued, and every "live" candidate profited mightily.

"Hairline" Figuring Necessary

It is a strange coincidence, too and something unusual in affairs of this kind, but each of the leading candidates who is striving for first honors and the grand prizes benefited so equally during the period just closed that it will require hairline figuring before today's leaders can be determined.

The competition therefore, so far as the relative standing is concerned, depends almost entirely upon the results obtained by the various candidates between now and the finish as to who the ultimate winners will be.

UNNECESSARY NOISES

A society which would prove as useful as others are, useless and which would be as popular as others are unpopular would be a society for the suppression of preventable bedlam.

Every growing community is beset with problems, and the noise problem is not the least of them. It ranks in importance with traffic, zoning, building, planning and, in manufacturing towns, smoke control.

An accurate barometer of the importance of any municipal problem is the number of complaints heard. Only poor streets and traffic congestion are provocative of more general complaint and protest than street noises.

Common noises with which the public is at odds are night-prowling motor trucks, rattling milk crates of the before-dawn delivery boys, street cars with flat wheels, midnight automobile horns, neighborhood quartets "stealing the stuff" of Chanticleer, and the ladies of the neighborhood who shatter the early morning mists with their broadcasting across the back fence or the intervening street.

One of the penalties the city must suffer is the loss of the peace and quiet it enjoyed as a village, but, while it is inevitable that every increase in population occasions an increase in community noises, it is just as obvious that many existing noise-nuisances are unnecessary.

Suggestive of future noise preventative measures are community bans on clamorous wedding celebrations, curbing of unnecessary blowing of automobile horns and actions against traction companies which neglect the wheels of their cars and the joints of their tracks.

THE PERSONAL TOUCH

The transition from the general store to the department store and specialty shop period was regretted by those who feared "big business" would destroy the personal relation that had existed between merchant and customer. It is true that as the individual business has grown there has been a change in the relations between the merchant and customer, but it has resulted in no loss to either.

Business in its new complex and greatly magnified form is still conducted on a personal basis. The customer can still buy from a "name," nor a "counter," and the merchant as much today as ever in the past does business with "persons," not with mere "customers." Such relations between customer and merchant make business mutually pleasant for both patron and business man.

The change that has taken place in the personal side of business is that trained and dependable clerks now represent the merchant in the personal relationship. The customer can not always buy direct from the proprietor as in the days of the proprietor-and-errand-boy store. Business has outgrown that. Today the clerk is acquainted with the wants of the individual customer and the customer seeks the clerks with whom he is acquainted and in whom he has confidence.

Matrimony is like a cafeteria. A fellow takes what he thinks he wants and pays for it later.

Helpful Advice to Girls

By NANCY LEE

DEAR NANCY LEE: I am 19, and I have had a love affair that hasn't ended just quite right. I have gone with this friend for more than a year. Recently I was taken sick and I was in bed for seven weeks. During my sickness, this friend deserted me, and now I feel as if nothing at all mattered. But I can't forget him.

BLUE EYES.

BLUE EYES: What is love but service and devotion? You should rejoice that you have so soon discovered that your affections were directed towards a fair-weather friend—someone who left you cold when you most needed him. A fine outlook for the future, that would be. Now, girlie, pull yourself together, don't make yourself ill again, but be glad that you are well and that your eyes have been opened.

DEAR NANCY LEE: We are two heart-broken little girls at the age of 17. We are madly in love with two boys, 19 and 22. But they don't seem to care anything for us, and we can't understand why they don't.

BROKEN-HEARTED.

BROKEN-HEARTED: Of course you are only little girls, if you were older you would know that forced love is not worthwhile, that only the affection that is spontaneously given can endure. All you can do is to be nice and pleasant to the boys, and don't try to force yourselves on them. That is what disgusts so many of our modern young men. In the meantime, see if you can't find other friends.

DEAR NANCY LEE: I am a girl of eighteen. I am going with a fellow twenty-three. I have been going with him almost two years and not dating any other fellows. He wants me to marry him. I love him, but don't know if I love him enough to marry him.

E. W.: What do you want a total stranger to do, make up your mind for you? You must like the man well enough if you haven't had any other friends in two years and surely you must find his company extremely congenial. If you love the man, as you say you do, surely you must love him enough to marry him.

Following the crash of his plane in Joan Marbury's Florida orange groves, young and wealthy Dave Ordway is content with the peaceful life on the plantation that is a contrast to his former pleasure-seeking existence. Adventure awaits him here, however. Mueller, brutal owner of the adjoining groves, is trying to force his attentions upon Joan. He robs Dave and burns his plane because Dave refuses his demands for damage to Mueller's property in landing. Joan's cousin, Sally, who lives on the plantation, is in love with Dave, but he is more attracted by the reserved Joan. When Dave's erstwhile fiancée, Barbara Holworthy, and his friends, Gerry Flemming and Talbot Henderson, visit him, he is aware of the antagonism among the girls. Gerry recognizes Mueller as "Snatch" Carzoni, a bootlegger. The boys leave to steal Mueller's plane to replace Dave's. They discover Mueller's liquor store. Fearing trouble Dave has Talbot return to warn the girls to stay at home. They disregard the warning. Hearing a rumour, the boys prepare for Mueller's attack. Figures loom in the darkness. Dave grapples with one. It is Joan. On impulse, they kiss.

Too Willing

"I'll go," announced Gerry's subdued voice from the darkness. "You stay here," commanded Dave. "You've caused enough trouble for one night."

"Effen I'd of had my carvin' knife," said Hannah, waspishly, "I'd of cut dot triflin' man's neck 'om ear to ear!"

"From where I stand, it seems like a good idea," offered Talbot, unkindly. "Could you do anything with a gold penknife?"

"Talbot," said Dave, "didn't I tell you to ask the girls to stay at home? Come over here where I can get my two hands on you."

Talbot's footsteps could be heard moving away.

"No," replied Barbara. "We came in Miss Marbury's quaint little car."

"My eye!" muttered Talbot. "What a place for a convention! If you ladies would care to sit down and wait, I'll totter over to the other house and bring back a bottle of choice liquor. Then we could all rally around and tell ghost stories."

"I'll go," announced Gerry's subdued voice from the darkness. "You stay here," commanded Dave. "You've caused enough trouble for one night."

to cover your retreat. If Mueller's men hear you going to the cars I'll make a whale of a noise and then duck. So beat it, everybody. I'll join you in a few minutes."

Something cold and hard was pressed against his hand. His fingers closed around the corrugated butt of Joan's automatic. He wished he could see her face in the dark. Reaching out with his other hand he captured her warm, slender hand. Her fingers lay passive in his grip.

A strong sense of unreality swept over him. His pulses were pounding from this momentary contact with a girl who was almost a stranger, while somewhere close by in the all-obliterating blackness was Barbara, whom he had known all his life and whom he had never, until a few days ago, doubted that he would marry. The habits of years are not easy to break. He felt almost guilty, standing there with Joan's unresisting hand in his, while Barbara was but a dozen feet away. Somehow he was glad that it was dark and that he could not see Barbara's eyes upon him. Somewhere there, too, was Sally, who, but an hour or two ago, had been almost in his arms. Out there on the porch of the old plantation house she had seemed, for a few soul-stirring moments, more beautiful, infinitely more desirable, than any girl he had ever known.

Courageous Heart

It had been that wraithlike vision of Joan that had saved him from sweeping her cousin into his arms. And now Joan, who was bravely doing the best she knew how, was passing her automatic to him, allowing her hand to rest in his. It seemed absurd that her small, slender hand should ever have closed around a flinty, ugly blued steel. Such a weapon was for men to use in time of war. And this was America, not France.

A few dozen miles away there were officers of the law, whose duty it was to save women from the necessity of carrying and using such weapons. But a few dozen yards away there were lawless, violent men, whose voices he could even now hear echoing through the empty rooms.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow.)

Reaching out, he captured her warm slender hand. Her fingers lay passive in his grip.

"Oh, Davey, you are so masterful!" Barbara's voice was brittle. "And now, if we've played 'follow-the-leader' long enough, let's go home. All this seems a bit childish to me."

"Listen, folks," called Talbot, who had retreated into the other room, "we'd better follow Babe's advice. I just peeked out of the side window. The Rollo Boys are heading this way and, if I'm any judge, they're in a rare bad humor."

Dave pushed past Hannah's portly form and grasped the unsteady Gerry by the arm.

"Listen, Gerry," he said firmly, "light or sober, you're usually pretty good in a jam. Now please don't let me down this time. You and Talbot take the girls back to the cars and see that they get to Joan's safely. From then on it's up to you. Understand?"

"Sure, I understand," agreed Gerry, owlishly. "Then I'm coming back to smack Mueller."

"Oh, do anything you please after the girls are safe," snapped Dave, impatiently.

"What are you going to do, Dave?" asked Joan, anxiously.

"I'll ride back with you as far as the groves," replied Dave, confidently. "But first, I'll wait here

WHY?

DOES THE COURIER
OFFER $10,000 IN GOLD PRIZES?

A Fair Question---We're Glad to Answer!

WHY WE DO IT:

Why does The Bristol Courier put up $10,000 in gold gifts? Why does The Courier guarantee one who is active in this election valuable consideration for his or her efforts? There are two reasons

FIRST — This is a FRIEND-MAKING ELECTION. SECOND — Only by conducting a FAIR AND LIBERAL election with GIFTS OF VALUE TO EVERYONE who participates, will it be possible for The Courier to accomplish its aim.

And what is The Courier's aim? How can The Courier afford to give absolutely FREE, WITHOUT ONE CENT OF EXPENSE TO ANYONE, more than $10,000?

HERE'S HOW:

In this election The Courier hopes to secure more subscriptions—to enlarge its already large list—to add to its great family of readers and friends. This will be accomplished by the addition of new subscribers, by the renewal of present subscriptions, and especially by the manner in which this campaign is conducted, for each and every reader who takes part in this election will, when it is over, be a living advertisement for The Courier. That means much.

MORE THAN MONEY

There are things more valuable to a newspaper than money. Subscriptions are more valuable, because they give what money cannot buy—prestige, power and enhance the value of the advertising columns.

The Courier is now taking its own medicine—IT IS ADVERTISING. It is spending money to create subscriptions—spending money to add to its advertising patronage and to create additional good will. It will not pay The Courier in dollars and cents today, it is true, but the effects of the election, the subscribers who are gained, the friends who will be made, will be of lasting, inestimable benefit. The Courier is simply investing in its own future, in the future of Bristol and vicinity. Frankly, in the end, it will greatly profit The Courier.

CIRCULATION NECESSARY

Circulation is absolutely necessary to a newspaper, and it is always an expense. No newspaper ever made money on its subscription list. Your Courier costs more each year to produce and deliver than you pay—much more. However, if by spending $10,000 now, The Courier will increase its subscriptions to the point where more advertisers will use its columns to reach a greater number of people, then in the years to come, this $10,000 will be returned time and time again to this newspaper.

A BUSINESS PROPOSITION

It is simply a business proposition, and sound from every standpoint. No one loses, not even The Courier. This paper, however, will not realize the benefits and cash in on them as soon as our readers who carry on with us in this Free Gold Gift Distribution.

The equipment of The Courier can care for 4,000 subscribers just as easily as it can 3,000—and that is our goal in the campaign.

NEW FIRE ENGINE FOR MORRISVILLE

Apparatus Seen by Many and Company's History
Given

MACHINE GIVEN A TEST

MORRISVILLE, May 12.—Saturday was a big day for the Capitol View Fire Company and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the company when the fire apparatus was housed.

The new machine was tested and it passed the underwriters' tests very successfully. There were many visitors here from other towns and cities to inspect this modern piece of fire fighting apparatus. It is the latest in pumps and it replaces an old chemical machine which has been in service of the Capitol View firemen for the past ten years.

The new apparatus was housed in the firehouse on North Pennsylvania avenue at a joint gathering of the firemen and the Ladies' Auxiliary.

Members of Common Council, Mayor Stockham, James E. Groom, president of the Bucks County Firemen's Association, and County Fire Marshal William L. Starkhouse, of Hulmeville, were guests. The members of the Ladies' Auxiliary furnished supper.

During the evening, Mayor Stockham reviewed the history of the Capitol View firemen from the time the company was first organized. Mr. Stockham was one of the organizers. President Groom, of the county association, and the county fire marshal, complimented the officers and members of the company and the auxiliary council also praised the members of for their work and the progress the company has made. The members of manner in which the affairs of the company are conducted.

The machine has a 500-gallon pumper together with a 200-gallon booster pump, the latter replacing the chemical system formerly carried. There are two hose lines from this booster system and this is used for small fires. The machine carries 500 feet of regulation size hose, one three-section 40-foot ladder, one 24-foot extension ladder, scaling ladder, six hand chemical tanks, two foamite tanks which are used for gasoline or oil fires.

The new apparatus is now in service.

fishing trip along the Rancocas Creek near Trenton.

Walter A. Taylor, of 2064 East Venango, a master potter and owner of the company that employs DeBusky, testified that DeBusky's reputation for sobriety was "very good."

In making his speech to the jury, Thomas Ross, of Doylestown, counsel for DeBusky said that the jury should give the case very careful consideration before rendering a verdict.

"The courts are cluttered up with liquor cases," he said. "And I am sorry to say that the police forces and the medical profession to a certain extent are quite ready at all times to declare a man drunk when brought before them. Just because a man has been arrested and charged with drunken driving does not mean by a long shot that he is necessarily guilty."

David F. Noble, of Roclifs, who first pleaded guilty and then changed his plea to not guilty on a charge of driving while drunk on April 7, was acquitted yesterday by a jury who directed that the county pay the costs. He was arrested by a State Highway Patrol officer and was examined by Dr. J. Fred Wagner, of Bristol.

Noble told the jury that he had not taken a drink of liquor in twenty years. Dr. Wagner testified that Noble was "undoubtedly under the influence of liquor."

During the course of the trial District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn asked Noble what he had been drinking today, and when Noble told him "hot coffee," Mr. Eastburn walked to the witness stand where Noble blew his breath in the prosecuting attorney's face.

Earlier in the day Noble had started to plead guilty "to save time," he said, but he insisted that he was not drunk. He was advised by Judge Keller to change his plea and stand trial.

Albert VanHorn, of 2020 Trenton avenue, Bristol, was fined $200 and costs by Judge Keller after he had pleaded guilty to driving while drunk on February 13.

Walter Ruditis, of Philadelphia, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller to a charge of driving while drunk in Doylestown on May 3 when he was arrested by Officer Scott Case. He was fined $200 and costs. Ruditis is a former Philadelphia police officer.

Runyan, the president of the Association has given much time to the promotion and building up of the organization, and to him belongs a lot of praise for the splendid success attained.

The Fathers' Association Orchestra has been a valuable adjunct to the Association and has helped to put pep into the meetings of the society. The various committees have worked hard and their results can be seen in the wonderful success which the Association has achieved.

and the most stupendous list of prizes ever conceived by a newspaper in this vicinity will be distributed.

"Second Period" Now On
The "second period" is now on and the present vote schedule will be in effect for eleven days more—then the schedule is very sharply reduced. The longer you delay in getting in "full swing," the less valuable your subscriptions will be from a vote standpoint. And that is what you are after—votes—or should be after them if you expect to be one of the big prize winners. The Courier's big gold gifts are to be distributed to those who deserve them—to those who make the best records in the vote column. "Wishes" won't get anywhere in this Gold campaign—but the vote producers will be handsomely rewarded in accordance with the effort put forth.

The Man Who Had to Kiss Mother-in-Law!

Extreme Cruelty, He Said, and Objected to the Extent of Asking a Divorce and Getting It—but Winifred Black Wonders About the Rest of the Story.

By WINIFRED BLACK

A MAN somewhere in the great wheat belt of the northwest, where Winter is Winter and blizzards are blizzards, divorced his wife the other day.

He charged her with extreme cruelty, and when he went to court, he told the Judge she forced him to kiss his mother-in-law good morning, and good night, every time the mother-in-law came to visit.

The Judge said, "unhum," or words to that effect, and told the man he must pay his wife $20 a week alimony the year round, Summer and Winter, blizzards or no blizzards, wheat crop or no wheat crop.

The man thinks that the Judge is out of place on the bench.

I'd like to hear the whole of that story, wouldn't you?

Why did the wife insist on her husband's kissing his mother-in-law?

Did the mother-in-law want to be kissed, or did she want to make husband kiss mother—oh, just for luck, maybe, or to show that she could make him do anything she told him to do?

Should a man be obliged to kiss his mother-in-law, even if he is not in the kissing mood?

And aren't kisses of any sort a good deal a matter of mood?

Maybe mother-in-law hated son-in-law worse than he hated her—and in that case—

What in the world is it that makes this situation as odd as the hills?

There are a few sons, who really do love their mother-in-law, and I have known, oh, at least three mothers-in-law, who really loved their daughter's husbands—but as a rule—dear, dear.

What folly it is to try to force such a situation.

Your own mother, you love anyhow—no matter how silly or selfish or unreasonable she is.

Oh, yes, I know it's the fact, just now, to say that you don't, but I have observed mothers and children for a good many years.

A boy will quarrel with his father, he will dislike his sister, he may even hate his own brother, but somewhere in his blood there is a strange primitive something that leaps to the surface when it comes to a real show-down where his mother is concerned.

Nurses in hospitals have told me time and again, war nurses, and regular nurses, that a dying man nine times out of ten does not call on his wife, or even his sweetheart—he never mentions his father, and as for his brother, and sister, he seems to forget he ever had any, but when the dark river that he must cross begins to surge so near that he can hear the rushing of the water, he opens his eyes, and calls—

Jealous Wives and Mothers

"Mother, mother."

Does he go back, I wonder, to the days of his childhood when there was just one friend he could count on in any moment of danger or distress?

Mother, mother—I wonder if the young wife realizes that, and if she is sometimes a little jealous?

That's what's the matter with the whole mother-in-law business. Jealousy, and it is usually the wife, and the man's mother, who are jealous of each other.

And the wife's mother is very often fairly eaten alive with jealousy of the stranger who has come into her life and taken away the one human being she tried to believe belonged to her.

What a cruel thing it is, this whole mother-in-law business. But then they knew about jealousy way back in the times of Solomon the Magnificent. Wasn't it Solomon who said:

"Love is as strong as death, and jealousy is as cruel as the grave." I think Solomon would have sympathized with the man who had to kiss his mother-in-law whether he wanted to or not, don't you?

AN ATTRACTIVE ENGLISH HOME

This attractive English home combines in one small compact house, all of the conveniences of many seemingly larger more expensive homes. Being designed to approximate a cube with no waste space and a minimum of wall and roof area, its cost of construction is very moderate.
The rambling elevations contain all the informalities and charm of the English style. The sweeping roof lines of the main roof come down over the entrance and on one side of the porch, off the living room and dining room on the other side, helping to establish this style.
The living room which is large and well arranged and the dining room adjacent, each have one of those charming bays that the English love to introduce into their best work. The sheltered porch opens from both the dining room and living room.
The kitchen is well lighted, has built-in cases, pot closet and its own side entry porch.
A stairway rises from the living room through a charming alcove to the rooms above. The second floor produces three large bedrooms and an abundance of closet room. Linen closet and well arranged bathroom. The stair is well lighted on both the first and second story.
On the entrance the structural feeling is carried out by using a half-timbered wood on the second story, and beams and posts of the porch and entrance features. This structural quality is typical of the best of the English work and to this is due much of the intimate friendly charm of the style.
Plans for this home can be had at a very small cost by writing to The Courier.

Dave's Delicatessen

Manager Wilbert Robinson was forced to bench Outfielders Lefty O'Doul and John Frederick, two of the hardest hitters in the National League.

"Feed 'em southpaws and you've got 'em whipped," is the slogan of the managers of the rival clubs. Having seen the way the Robins collapsed against southpaws, the other club managers are working their pitchers so that when their club meets Brooklyn they will have a battery of lefties ready for action. And unless the Robins get over the strange mental phobia that has gripped them it will be just too bad. Brooklyn won't win the pennant, after all.

Just before the regular season opened, the Robins played two exhibition games with the New York Yankees. They were "fed" southpaws in both contests and the Robins walloped them all over the lot. Previously, in spring training in Dixie, Brooklyn manhandled left-handed pitchers. It seemed as if they were demonstrating that there was sound logic in the contention of the "sharps" that because Brooklyn's line-up was composed mostly of left handed batters they couldn't hit left-handed pitchers.

But just as soon as the season opened and the rival managers began feeding 'em lefties, the great Brooklyn sluggers couldn't hit a lick. O'Doul and Frederick were terrible up there at the plate and Babe Herman, while his average held up pretty well, was a joke in the "clutch," as the ball players call the pinch. The benching of O'Doul and Frederick was only temporary but it illustrated the plight of the club.

Brooklyn, however, will have to slink or swim with its left-handed batters in there. They won't get anywhere with a shifting line-up, and the astute and genial Manager Robinson knows it. The Robins' batting punch is largely in O'Doul, Herman, Frederick and Del Bissonette, all of whom hit left-handed.

The trouble, of course, is 90 per cent mental. Last year Brooklyn was well able to cope with southpaw pitching. True, O'Doul wasn't on the team then, but Herman, Frederick and Bissonette were. Brooklyn last season won 37 games and dropped 25 decisions to southpaw pitchers, a winning percentage of .597. The team's percentage against right-handed pitchers was only .533, compiled by 49 victories and 43 defeats.

O'Doul, Brooklyn's new left-handed hitter, replaces Rube Bressler in the outfield and line up this year. Bressler is ambidextrous. Brooklyn fans cannot see why O'Doul replacing Bressler should make any difference because O'Doul out-hit Bressler by 90 points last season. O'Doul's previous record indicated he was never greatly puzzled by left-handed pitching, either in the National League or on the Pacific Coast.

Left-handed hitters like O'Doul, Herman, Bissonette and Frederick should be great assets to Brooklyn and that is the way the Brooklyn management and the fans have figured them throughout the winter season whenever they discussed the Robins' chances for 1931. The addition of O'Doul, and second baseman Fresco Thompson, was believed to have just about "made" the Brooklyn club.

Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth, Hal Chase, Lou Gehrig, Joe Jackson, Chuck Klein, Heinie Manush, Sam Crawford, Eddie Collins, Frank Baker, Eddie Rousch, Willie Keeler, Zach Wheat, Paul Waner, Bill Terry and other left-handed hitters never allowed southpaw pitchers to "get them down" simply because they threw with the left flipper. Even though the mental condition of the Brooklyn club is causing their faithful followers in Flatbush acute concern, the fans are standing by loyally hoping and believing that the strange power, southpaw pitchers are able to wield over their team, will pass. They are too wise to baseball to believe that the opposing pitchers can hold O'Doul, Herman, Bissonette, Frederick, Wright, Lopez, Thompson, Gilbert and other Brooklyn hitters in subjection much longer. They figure that there will be many balmy afternoons when the opposing pitchers—left or right-handers—will be distressed over the problem of how to get the side out.

NEXT Monday, the first of the world's "Big Four" golf events—the British amateur championship—starts on the Westward Ho! course, one of England's famed shore links. Bobby Jones won that classic in the route of his phenomenal sweep last year, and, again, Uncle Sam has high hopes of retaining the British amateur cup, thanks to George Voigt, now rated as the ablest of all America's golfing simon pures.

Voigt gave even Jones a hard fight in their semi-final match over there last Spring, and, on the general play in that tournament, British critics rated George as next to the incomparable Bobby himself. Even from the critical American angle, Voigt looms as the most seasoned and consistently expert among the amateurs, with Jones retired and George Von Elm pursuing his profitable way as "a business man golfer."
